

GRADUATE ASSISTANT GUIDELINES

ASSISTANTSHIPS FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS

General Policy

Assistantships for graduate students provide outstanding students with financial resources to help them complete their degrees. Assistantships offer varying educational and professional benefits but, in general, assistantships can offer the opportunity to—

- gain further instruction in field of study
- gain leadership experience
- hone your research skills
- acquire pedagogical experience necessary for an academic career
- develop professional skills including leadership, interpersonal effectiveness, and
- performance evaluation

Anderson University awards approximately 21 graduate assistantships to qualified students each year (Educational Support-2; Student Life-4; Athletics-14; and Admissions-1). These awards are intended to help accomplish our educational mission as well as to supplement your academic and professional pursuits.

The Office of Work Life Engagement coordinates the employment of the Graduate Assistantship program and direct supervision is provided by the respective Dean/Director: Athletic Director; Dean of Students; Director of Educational Support Services; Director of Admissions, Recruitment and Outreach; Controller, Asst. Treasurer. Graduate Assistants are employed under the University student employment guidelines and subject to the policies of the Student Employment Handbook.

Objectives

Assistantships are designed to –

- recruit outstanding and promising students to graduate study, with special attention to access and equal opportunity policies
- provide graduate-level learning experiences through a supervised assignment
- provide support that enables you to complete your graduate degree on time
- provide the university with limited support services in selected programs and areas

Eligibility for Appointment/Reappointment

To be considered for an assistantship, candidates must –

- possess an earned baccalaureate degree (or its equivalent) by your beginning assignment date

TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF ASSISTANTSHIP AWARDS

Notice of Appointment

All newly appointed and re-appointed assistants will receive a letter of agreement that specifies the appointment title, stipend amount, effective dates of service, and the supervising individual/department.

Work Responsibilities

You will be supervised directly by a faculty or staff member of the program/department that offers your appointment. The assistantship supervisor recommends candidates for appointment, determines the assistantship assignments, and supervises and evaluates your work. Contact your supervisor for details about the assistantship.

Graduate assistantship appointments are typically half-time (20 hours per week) for one academic year (10 months). The time allocated to fulfilling work responsibilities should not exceed 20 hours a week; however, under special circumstances, an overload during one week may be balanced by a lighter load during the week before or after the overload. (International students, due to their visa status, are not allowed to work more than 20 hours per week in their assistantship.) Overload hours should be planned in advance and should be mutually agreed to by you and your supervisor. Under no circumstances may an assistant work more than 40 hours per week. Assistants do not earn vacation.

According to Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) regulations, Graduate Assistantships are considered “salaried non-exempt” appointments. Graduate Assistants (GAs) are required to record their actual hours worked. These sheets should be reviewed and signed by the Graduate Assistant’s supervisor on a monthly basis (or more frequently if requested by the supervisor).

If an assistant is sick or otherwise unable to come to work on a day that he/she is scheduled to work, the assistant should contact his/her supervisor. If you miss work hours, you should arrange with your supervisor to make up the hours. Assistants do not earn sick leave.

All assistantships are considered academic year appointments. Since assignments vary, your supervisor will monitor your work responsibilities. If an assistant is assigned duties during a scheduled academic holiday/break, he/she should be given equal time off at another time. This revised work schedule should be mutually agreed on by the assistant and his/her supervisor.

Graduate Assistants are to report to work as instructed by their department/supervisor.

Assistants are expected to conduct themselves in a manner that is professional, courteous, and conducive to a professional atmosphere in the performance of their University duties. Assistants are expected to comply with all work rules and expectations that are developed in their appointing programs, departments, or units, as well as with applicable University rules and policies. Applicable University policies include, but are not limited to Sexual Harassment, Drug Free Schools and Campuses, the University and Student Codes of Conduct, and policies governing research with human subjects and the use of University resources. You are expected to be familiar with these policies. Electronic copies of the policies can be accessed through links available on the Work Life Engagement, Department of Student Life and/or applicable Graduate school web pages.

Work Plan

Working with your designated supervisor, you will have a written work plan that includes –

- Job Description – general areas of responsibility as well as specific tasks
- Learning Objectives/Special Projects – responsibilities as they relate to the assistant's academic pursuits and/or career aspirations
- Work Schedule – the estimated number of hours per week to be spent on each assigned responsibility, and the schedule of days/times assistant will work each week

The agreed upon written work plan will be sent to Office of Work Life Engagement. In the event you wish to change your assistantship work schedule based upon adding or dropping a course after the work plan has been agreed to, you should meet with your supervisor and discuss the impact on your schedule. The work schedule may be changed by mutual agreement between the assistant and supervisor. In the event mutual agreement cannot be reached, the work schedule as agreed to in the work plan shall prevail.

Wages and Benefits

Graduate Assistants are designated by Anderson University as student employees. Pay rates vary depending on the work assignment but will not be less than minimum wage as required by Wage and Hour regulations; First Year Graduate Assistants are paid a $5,500 stipend. Second Year Graduate Assistants, a $7,000 stipend. Wages are not subject to FICA/Medicare tax withholdings as a full-time college student. Wages are paid according to the bi-weekly payroll schedule, normally over the August to May academic year, not summer. Graduate Assistants are covered by Worker's Compensation during paid work hours but are not eligible for other University benefits (vacation, sick leave, medical, dental, retirement or life insurance).

Graduate Assistants receive the remitted tuition benefit of 100% to earn a Master's Degree. This is a tuition waiver of up to $5,250 per year that is not taxable; tuition beyond this amount is taxable. Pre-requisite courses taken at Anderson University are covered by the tuition waiver. Program fees are the responsibility of the Graduate Assistant.

Satisfactory Academic Performance

Successful, timely completion of your graduate degree is the primary goal of our Assistantship Program. The responsibility for monitoring your mid-year and year-end academic progress rests with your designated supervisor. He or she will cooperate with your academic advisor, the dean or administrator of the program offering your appointment, and the Office of Work Life Engagement in making these evaluations.

Resignation/Withdrawal from Graduate Program

Upon accepting an Assistantship, it is assumed you will complete the entire academic year. If a resignation/withdrawal is deemed necessary, you are asked to resign/withdraw effective at the end of a semester unless circumstances prevent this. Prior to making a decision you are encouraged to speak with your Supervisor and/or Graduate Program Director. Notice of resignation/withdrawal is requested a minimum of 30 days prior to the end of the semester.

Resignation from Assistantship Assignment: Assistants may choose to resign from employment while continuing enrollment and continue enrollment in a graduate program. Should resignation from the assistantship assignment occur before the end of a semester, tuition waiver for the semester will be prorated and the balance of the semester's tuition applied to your student account.

Withdrawal from Graduate Program: Withdrawal from the graduate program is an automatic termination of the Graduate Assistantship assignment. If withdrawal occurs before the end of the semester, tuition and fee charges will be calculated in accordance with current policy and may be applied to your student account. The effective date of withdrawal will be the date communicated by the graduate program to the University Registrar.

Simultaneous Resignation/Withdrawal from Graduate Program: Both of the above procedures are effective.

Satisfactory Work Performance and Notice of Deficiency in Performance

Assistants are expected to meet responsibilities specified in the work plan, adhere to the agreed upon work schedule, and conduct themselves consistent with the employment expectations outlined in the Anderson University Student Employment Handbook. For most problems with performance, the assistantship supervisor will first attempt to correct performance deficiencies through work-related counseling, instruction, or training. Assistants are encouraged to work cooperatively with their supervisors to informally resolve performance problems.

Deficiencies in performance that are not resolved informally through work-related counseling, instruction, or training may result in formal discipline up to and including dismissal. Formal disciplinary procedures, in consultation with Work Life Engagement, will generally follow the process outlined in the Anderson University Staff Handbook. A recommendation to terminate your assistantship may occur if a very severe problem in performance exists, you fail to make specified improvements in performance within an established time period or there are violations of AU's conduct standards.

Termination

If your work performance is not satisfactory and you fail to make improvements specified in the notice of deficiency by the time your performance is re-evaluated, your supervisor may recommend to the dean/director or the division head that your assistantship be terminated or not renewed for the next year.

Behaviors that may result in the termination of your assistantship without oral warning or notice of deficiency in performance include, but are not limited to –

- failing to maintain academic eligibility because of unsatisfactory academic progress;
- obtaining off-campus employment in excess of 20 hours per week;
- engaging in unethical or unacceptable conduct (see University Code of Conduct at <http://www.anderson.edu/hr/policies>); or
- abandoning job duties (i.e., absence without approval for 3 or more working days)

Depending upon the reason for termination, you may be given 30 calendar days' notice. Behaviors defined as Gross Misconduct in the Anderson University Staff Handbook may result in immediate termination. Termination of an assistantship will follow the same procedures as "Resignation/Withdrawal from Graduate Program."

Renewal for Subsequent Academic Year

Reappointments to assistantship positions are not automatic. Students must apply for reappointment completing a Reappointment Request Form. Your application materials, academic records, performance evaluations, and length of time in the assistantship position will be considered when you seek reappointment. Graduate students who are not re-appointed will be notified in writing by the dean/director or their supervisor.

Academic eligibility for reappointment requires that you are in good standing at AU, have completed at least 12 semester hours of credit during the academic year, are making satisfactory progress toward completion of your degree, and have no incomplete grades. Incomplete coursework must be completed before a student can be reappointed.

Assistantships are normally limited to a maximum of four semesters. Students normally will not be considered for assistant appointments that exceed four semesters. Exceptions to this policy can be considered under extraordinary circumstances. To request this exception, you must complete the Graduate Assistantship Reappointment Request form, attach a letter detailing the basis for your request and any supporting documentation you wish to include. Submit the Request form with the letter(s) to the Office of Work Life Engagement which will facilitate the decision process.
